

Give An Hour Scheme

Give An Hour Scheme

FOR SOLICITORS AND LAW FIRMS

Hourglass is the only charity in the UK dedicated to ending the abuse of older people.

- It's estimated 2.7 million people across the UK are affected by abuse, yet it's rarely reported in the media or discussed in Parliament.
- Over 12,000 people reach out to Hourglass' helpline services, seeking advice, support and information related to the abuse of an older person
- Our helpline team are contacted from those affected by abuse and by those worried about the safety or wellbeing of an older relative or friend
- Hourglass does more than just pledge to help those calling the helpline. We deliver IDVA (Independent Domestic Violence Advocate) and case work support, as well as events in local communities.
- Hourglass helps those affected by physical abuse, sexual abuse, neglect, financial abuse, psychological abuse and domestic abuse

Hourglass has pledged legal advice to help those contacting our helpline services.

We're seeking the support and expertise of specific legal professionals who want to make a difference to the lives of older people at risk of abuse and are willing to be a part of our Give An Hour Scheme.

We want to ensure our caller has a full understanding of the options available to them, so they are able to make an informed decision as to how they will embark on their next steps.

Hourglass Case Study

Feedback from one of our callers

We were contacted by a family member who was concerned about an elderly relative she felt was being financially abused. Our helpline team advised her to talk with a legal professional experienced in this area who was able to help.

This is what she said:

"I contacted you in desperation as my lovely aunt, who had been diagnosed with Alzheimer's, was being financially abused. At the time of contacting you, I had been constantly hitting brick walls, as I had no legal rights as my Aunt's niece. You was my last hope.

I am so grateful to you because the recommended solicitor managed to salvage this complex situation which I thought would be impossible to do. Had you not been there, I would have very likely just given up.

You do a fantastic job and thank you again"

How Can You Get Involved?

Hourglass is seeking professionals to be part of the success of our Give An Hour Scheme and provide a minimum of an hour's free legal advice.

How much time you decide to donate is up to you. It could be an hour, a month, fortnight or week. Initial consultations will be offered over video call.

Give An Hour could offer life changing information to some of our callers and you could be part of making a difference and taking another step closer to ending the abuse so many older people experience, yet so few talk about.

Benefits of being part of the Give An Hour Programme

Give An Hour has myriad of benefits for those that get involved.

- A training opportunity to introduce staff to cases around abuse of older people.
- To allow an organisation to show their dedication to Corporate Social Responsibility (CSR).
- It's a simple and effective way to differentiate your business and legal team from that of your competitors.
- It offers great marketing content you can share with your local community, current and potential clients.
- Amplify your marketing via Hourglass' social media channels, digital marketing and webinar programmes.
- Future opportunities for networking and meeting with other professionals within your industry.

Want to Offer More?

In March, our dedicated helpline transformed into a much needed 24/7 operation. This means we're on call to help those people that need us every day of the year, including overnight, weekends and bank holidays.

This is a vital service for the UK's vulnerable older people and those that care for them, but we can't do this without help.

To ensure our callers receive the best advice and help we can offer, we want to invest in our helpline and case work services. With this in mind, Hourglass has set a £50,000 target from this new scheme to ensure we continue to save and change more lives.
